TRIALS OF GOOD WIVES. Married life may not be one of happiness to the best of wives, for reasons and causes In bags and barrels, a very excellent Manure, over which she has no control. At the time of her marriage, her prospects for the future may have all been unclouded; her husband may have been one apparently worthy of her love, and yet afterwards he may have exhibited traits of character which were previously unsuspected; proving himself to be an utterly unappreciative, selfish, and exacting master, dishonoring and disgracing the name of husband; or the too confiding wife may have been shocked to find him under the dominion of vicious habits which destroyed all hope of domestic peace. At It is put up in bugs and barrels. Particular at the time of their union neither of them may tention is asked to the tollowing analysis by Dr. have been pious; but when she became so, it R. H. Stabler. provoked the displeasure of her husband, Organic Matter, yielding Ammonia..... and perhaps, exposed her to a long series of petty persecutions which embittered life, not because she was unable to bear them, his curse. Hard indeed is the lot of the poor woman who is wedded to one who hates the cause which is inexpressibly dear to her, and who by ridicule, scoffs, and abuse, punishes her BONE DUST, of best quality, in barrels. by ridicule, scoffs, and abuse, punishes her for being better than himself. No one can look in her face without being convinced that she is borne down by the pressure of some Farming community.

Analysis by Dr. R. H. Stabler. heavy grief. Her countenance gives unmis- Soluble Phosphate or Lime..... takeable indication of some rooted sorrow .-She walks about among the living, but sees | Organic Matter few charms in the employments of life. In secret she mourns her trial, for it is one which she cannot speak of to another. In the presence of her husband she strives to repress her anguish and look cheerful, but her the unreal appearance.

He sees the conflict, the kind but fruitless effort to conceal her distress, and perhaps cursing her tears, he avoids the home darkened by the shadow which he himself has cast, and seeks in the haunts of heartless mirth and dissipation, an escape from the rebukes of his own conscience.

"How many bright eyes grow dim," ex-claims the most classic of American writers, "how many soft cheeks grow pale-how many lovely forms fade away into the tomb, and none can tell the cause that blighted wings to its side, and cover and conceal the arrow that is preying on its vitals, so it is the nature of woman to hide from the world the pangs of wounded affection. She buries By Prof. Morfit, of New York. her sorrow in the recessess of her own bosom and lets it cower and brood among the ruins of her own peace. Look for her after a little while and you will find friendship weeping over her untimely grave, and wondering that one who but lately glowed with, all the radiance of health and beauty should so speedily be brought down to "darkness and the worm." You will be told of some wintry chill, some casual indisposition, that laid her low; -but no one knows of the mental malady which previously sapped her strength, and made her so easy a pray to the spoiler. It is domestic sorrow, unrevealed and unsuspected, that often digs these premature

But whatever be the occasion of the wife's unhappiness, whether it proceed from the bad temper of her husband, or from his intemperance, or insane jealousy, or hatred of her religion—still her duty remains the same; until a legal separation becomes unavoidable; as long as they continue to live together, God's holy word,—which affords practical instruction for the right discharge of all the duties belonging to all the relations of life requires her meekly to bear her cross; requires herstill to study her husband's welfare, to refrain from recriminations; to set a watch parison with any phosphatic GUANO now for sale.

Over the door of her line: to obey his comover the door of her lips; to obey his commands as long as they do not conflict with the law of God; to pray for him; and ceaselessly to strive to win him back to the love and practice of his duty, by the beautiful consistency of her example, by her patience, humility, and attractive piety. However such counsels may be treated with levity by some, or with contempt by others, they are not the counsels of man, but the explicit teachings of holy Scripture, and bind-ing upon all who profess to be governed by the Divine will. The language of the Apostle is, "Likewise, ye wives, be in subjection to your own husbands, that, if any obey not the word, they also may without the word be won by the conversation of their wives while they beholed your chaste conversation coupled with fear." The word "conversation," refers to the whole deportment and manner of life, and the injunction is that if the husband of the pious wife be without respect for the authority of God, she is still to yield him proper honor, because he is her husband and by her holy example strives to disarm his resentment, and win him to the practice of virtues like her own.

Then, let the dutiful wife under all her discouragements, patiently persevere in the dis-charge of duty; let her hope on—pray on.— Like the disciples of old, let her "go and tell Jesus" her sorrow; assured of his ready, tender sympathy. He will dry her tears, and if he does not remove her affliction, he will sanctify it, and make it the means of preparing her for the consolations of Heaven's own peace. And it may be her joy so see her fidelty to duty rewarded even in this life; she may yet be the instrument of the salvation of her husband; she may yet bow with him around the family altar; she may yet sit with

[N calling the attention of the public to this valheart is faint and nature struggles against I hable and recently discovered deposit of this fertilizing article, we will merely state, that like all other phosphatic GUANOS, its most valuable constituent is phosphoric acid, or bone phosphate of lime; and that its mercantile value, as compared with other GUANOS of its kind, may be easily determined by the amount of phosphoric acid or bone phosphate of lime it contains. In order, therefore, to give the public a thorough knowledge of what SOMBRERO GUANO does contain, we beg to refer to the following list of eminent chemists in different parts of the world, who have analyzed different cargoes, from average samples taken by themselves from the cargoes just as they arrive from the island, without drying or selection of specimens for analyzation. Each analysis will be their loveliness! As the dove will clasp its exhibited, if required, under the original signature
